

Models In Epidemiology And Biostatistics
Gordon Hilton Fick

Courtesy and Etiquette

1. Please do not use the internet during class. Do not check or respond to your Email, Mobile Phone, Pager, FaceBook, Twitter, MySpace, LinkedIn, etc. during class. Please do not text during class. Phones and pagers should be turned off. Multitasking is a myth.
2. Please bathe and avoid the use of scents, perfumes, colognes etc. This class is a scent-free environment.
3. Sleeping in class is not acceptable. Displaying that you are bored, disinterested, lonely, yawning, sleep deprived, etc. is disrespectful.
4. Questions are welcome during class. Nevertheless, if it is judged that your question is too specialized, off topic or too advanced, you may be asked to postpone the discussion until the break or after class.
5. Please do not chat with your neighbour during class.
6. Please arrive for class on time. The class begins promptly at the scheduled time. If you must leave early, please advise the instructor or one of the teaching assistants in advance. If possible, for these circumstances, take a seat close to one of the doors to make a quick and quiet exit.
7. Please eat your lunch before class, if possible. Eating or drinking is OK in class but please avoid distracting eating noises or food smells.
8. Only registered students may attend class. Exceptions can be made by special arrangement with either the instructor or one of the teaching assistants.
9. You are most welcome to use your laptop during class. The sound should be turned off. Activity on your laptop should be restricted to class matters. Read #1 [above] again.